Time to count the cost

More than 60,000 homes lose power ◗ Many trees down all over the city, damaging homes, businesses and cars ◗ Body pulled from marina, police unsure if death is related to storm

To the relief of many, Hurricane Irene did not wallop New York with as much of a punch as feared, but thousands still lost power, had to deal with flooding and were cut off from home and work as the city's subway system remained down.

The storm knocked out power to more than 62,000 households across the city, with Queens the worst hit, according to Mayor Michael Bloomberg. There, more than 28,000 homes were without electricity yesterday. Despite warnings from Con Ed that the utility company may turn off power to Lower Manhattan, the lights stayed on downtown, and Wall Street was expected to open again for business this morning.

Flooding was also an issue. There was about a foot of water on the streets in the South Street Seaport at midmorning yesterday. Out in the Rockaways, waves from the Atlantic Ocean breached ▶ Wind brought down a tree on Freeman Street in Greenpoint, damaging two homes and a car and taking down power lines.

94th Street between 127th and 132nd streets, according to the mayor.

Mayor Bloomberg said yesterday afternoon that no serious injuries or deaths were caused by the storm, but around 5 p.m., police pulled a body from the water at Sunset Marina on City Island in the Bronx. Police said they do not yet know how he died, and would not confirm if they are investigating the death in connection with the hurricane.

"The wind was blowing things around like it was paper."
HALL-LAKE

In Staten Island, firefighters used inflatable rafts to rescue 61 people, including three babies, who were trapped in their homes. Willowbrook Park Pond overflowed, an FDNY spokesman told Metro, sending five feet of water into homes at about 8 a.m. yesterday.

Across the city, winds of up to 60 miles per hour brought down trees, damaging cars and buildings.

"My sister called me and said her car alarm was going off at 4 a.m.," said Veronica Hall-Lake, whose sister's car was smashed by a tree on Hancock Street in Bedford-Stuyvesant, Brooklyn. "There was nothing we could do. We couldn't go outside, the wind was blowing things around like it was paper."

Just rain and wind for many

For many New Yorkers, the storm was not as bad as they feared. Greenpoint resident Chris Henderson decided to heed Bloomberg's advice to evacuate, and he and his girlfriend headed to higher ground in Staten Island. "We had some heavy rain but it didn't seem like anything more severe than a thunderstorm," said Henderson, 35. "We didn't lose power, but we'll see what it's like when we go back home. The major thing right now is we really want the MTA up and running." METRO/CB

Crime pauses for hurricane

Even New York's criminals stopped what they were doing and prepared for the storm. NYPD Commissioner Ray Kelly reported 45 arrests Saturday night, compared to 345 arrests on an average Saturday night in August. METRO/CB

BRITTANY SOMERSET/METRO

Trees down citywide

In La Plaza Cultural Garden in the East Village, the storm knocked down an old weeping willow. "Wow, I can't believe it came completely out of the ground," said Manhattan resident Eric Rosenstock. "It is such a massive tree. What a shame." Winds of up to 55 miles per hour continued all day yesterday, as Hurricane Irene took her time leaving New York.

Slow going restoring subway service

The MTA began restoring bus service at 4:30 yesterday afternoon, but this morning's commute remained a headache, if not nearly impossible, for many.

MTA officials said yesterday it will take eight hours to get all the trains, buses and rail service back on track and warned that subway service would not be running for this morning's commute. Gov. Andrew Cuomo and MTA Chairman Jay Walder announced later that restoration would begin at 6 a.m.

"It's fair to say you're going to have a tough commute," said Mayor Michael Bloomberg.

PATH service will be up and running by 4 a.m. today, so those in New Jersey can rely on the PATH to get them to work this morning. The Staten Island Ferry out of St. George began running yesterday afternoon, as well.

But due to flooding on the tracks, downed trees and other damage, Metro-North and LIRR are not expected to be back up and running normally today. METRO/CB

Downgraded Irene's trail of damage

Hurricane Irene surged through New York City yesterday, flooding waterfronts and low-lying areas, but America's most populous city avoided the mass devastation some had feared.

Irene was downgraded to a tropical storm as it moved up the coast, dropping heavy rain on Massachusetts, Connecticut and Rhode Island.

On its march over the weekend, the storm left at least 12 dead, as many as 3.6 million customers without electricity, widespread flooding and damage to coastal towns in several states. REUTERS

Our Aim is to Beat Most Offers!

We Strive to Beat All Legitimate Written Offers

Before Bringing your items to us, take them to other dealers. Have them give you legitimate offers in writing. Then bring your jewelry and written offers to one of our locations. Although no one can guarantee with certainty they are paying the highest price for an article at any particular time, we will strive to beat most legitimate written offers.

Why We Can Usually Pay More Than Other Dealers

Most jewelers and dealers specialize in few items and focus on newer looking items to resell. Because they are unfamiliar with many other items including vintage jewelry, old watches, coins, flatware, etc. they tend to offer very low prices because these items are not readily saleable for them. Our company has many specialized buyers for the various classifications of items that we purchase, therefore we can usually pay more.

A Note Regarding the Up To Prices listed in this Ad

The condition and rarity of an item determines its price. If an item is in excellent condition and very rare it might be worth the up to price, or even more. However, if an item is in poor condition, the value will be lower. For example, a 1927 S Quarter could be worth $7,000 in new condition or less than $20 in poor condition. The up to price reflects items of exceptional quality and rarity. Although it is unlikely you will have these items due to their extreme rarity, feel free to bring whatever items you may have and we will evaluate them free of charge.

Customer Satisfaction

Most of our business comes from satisfied customers and referrals which includes their friends and families. Our showrooms are safe and private. Our staff is courteous and professional and we strive as a company to make your selling experience a pleasant one.

Help the Environment
Using recycled precious metals for jewelry is an important way for jewelers to source precious metals more responsibly. Precious metals that have already been used in some way, including "vintage," "renewed," or "reclaimed" metals from jewelry and electronics, are not directly implicated in the destructive impacts of mining. They do not share responsibility for the impacts of mining in the same way that newly mined gold does.

THE WORD

Metro's Dorothy Robinson shares her take on the world of gossip @dorothyatmetro dorothy.robinson@metro.us

What if these celebs were BFF?

Hollywood is already filled with weird best friends. You don't think so? What about Gwyneth Paltrow and Madonna, Katie Holmes and Victoria Beckham, Rihanna and Katy Perry, Kanye West and Jared Leto? But hey, if you're super rich and can't have normal friends for fear they will sell all of your information to Us Weekly for a nice payday, I can see how you will cling to whomever. Here are a few more couplings we'd like to see happen:

▶ Zac Efron and Lil Wayne
What better way for Efron to show the world that, yes, he can tap dance, but also that he has mean street cred?

▶ Helena Bonham Carter and Rhianna:
If you think about it, their closets are probably similarly madcap?

▶ Ricky Gervais and Justin Bieber:
Because someone needs to show Bieber what it's like to have a sense of humor.

▶ Tyra Banks and Kristen Stewart:
If anyone is going to teach Stewart how to stand up straight and smize, it's Banks.

▶ John Malkovich and Anne Hathaway:
Hathaway needs another thespian to whip the annoying out of her otherwise formidable performance skills. Calling John Malkovich!

▶ Drew Barrymore and Lindsay Lohan:
Barrymore can show Lohan it's possible to overcome addiction while still retaining a sense of fun and a career. Wouldn't that be nice?

▶ Jake Gyllenhaal and James Franco:
Because. Wow. Imagine the gay rumors on that one.

▶ Jeff Bridges and Taylor Momsen:
Maybe all Momsen needs to do to chill with this insane angst she's sporting is to drink a few domestics with the Dude in some California dive bar? I know it'd make me feel better about my daddy issues.

▶ Sarah Jessica Parker and Dee Snyder:
Because, when you think about it, they really might be long-lost twins.

The feed ...

Andy Milonakis is getting all sci-fi on his mom, Fabolous needs to cut out the cray-cray, Russell Simmons wants to broker peace, LL Cool J gets philosophical and Bill Cosby is strangely optimistic about the future. Which newspaper is he reading??

▶ @Andy Milonakis
My mom talks a lot, i just called her mom-makin skytalker

▶ @Fabolous
I'm about to unfollow some people ... But not on twitter, from my life.

▶ @RussellSimmons
Lil Wayne and Jay are genius lyricists. Bury da beef

▶ @Bill Cosby
This country, really and truly, has gone through a magnificent metamorphosis.

Why is Hollywood so unreal?

Many everyday things that happen in our day-to-day lives don't show up in shows or movies Why not? What it means to include the mundane

You're watching a movie in which two characters are in the midst of an intense conversation about a giant asteroid that is on a direct path to the Pentagon when all of a sudden one of them says, "Hold that thought — gotta pee!" and darts off screen.

Doesn't happen much, does it? As a matter of fact, unless it's directly related to the advancement of the plot, we never see these real-world moments happen on screen. Are there consequences to this exclusion? Grae Drake, movie critic at movies.com thinks so.

"The reason I'm most indignant about this topic is that movies are single-handedly reinforcing why it's cooler to be a movie star than it is to be a real person," she says. "Because all of these menial tasks that make up a life are completely edited out of a representation of life, therefore making us think that being normal is totally lame."

That's just the point, argues Dr. Tonia M. Edwards, film and media professor at Georgia State University.

"Those mundane moments are often removed because Hollywood encourages escape from everyday life. By removing the often tedious aspects from the story being told, it allows the viewer to distance themselves from a life in which they spend large portions of their days doing relatively unexciting things," she says, but adds that a certain brand of film far removed from Hollywood chooses to emphasize the boring side of life in order to make an artistic statement.

Never seen

Things we never see on-screen unless it's significant to a plot:

- Saying goodbye when hanging up the phone
- Sneezing or coughing
- Grocery shopping
- Replacing a light bulb
- General clumsiness

20TH CENTURY FOX

▶ Surely Jack Bauer found two minutes to use the bathroom at least once within a season of "24" even if we never saw it.

"European art cinema, for example, often chooses to include moments and various elements simply because they reinforce the realistic qualities of a story. Typically, they do this in order to force people to face real life issues."

Given that "art cinema" doesn't often make it to the multiplex, it's a fair guess most people aren't looking for reality. Professor of film studies at Seton Hall, Christopher Sharrett, explains why.

"Today's movies emphasize spectacle and special effects. Writing takes a back seat, and with it real human concerns," he says. "Observing real human concerns are not, sad to say, what the audience has been trained to want, with a few exceptions."

All the world's a stage

Theater comes to unlikely places in two new, dramatic works, 'The Tenant' by Woodshed Collective and The Amoralists' 'HotelMotel'

Since Punchdrunk's "Sleep No More" took New York City by storm, new site-specific works are cropping up all across town to keep theatergoers on their toes — or at the edge of their seats — in unconventional ways.

"The Tenant," produced by Woodshed Collective, follows the story of a man who rents an apartment following the suicide of its previous occupant. It was initially conceived in Roland Topor's 1964 novella and then replicated in Roman Polanski's film by the same name in 1976. Here, participants enter a dilapidated church and wander through five floors where they can mimic the very ghost of the newly deceased former resident by spying on the private lives of the depressed, repressed building's inhabitants who may or may not have had a hand in the Parisian girl's death. As the central character, Trelkovsky, gradually learns about his neighbors, his sense of paranoia and claustrophobia grows. Written by six playwrights, the storyline is impressively woven together via the use of television sets, where clues and pieces of script spring up at surprise intervals to tease out even more anticipation and tension.

The Amoralists' "HotelMotel" places two contrasting works back to back: first you enter an upscale hotel room in Manhattan, and then you're transported to a motel in the dead of winter in the middle of Boone, N.C. First, Derek Ahonen's "Pink Knees On Pale Skin" invites 20-member audiences to watch as a devious sex psychologist counsels couples through intimate sessions. Following a 20-minute intermission, Adam Rapp's "Animals & Plants" takes center stage in the same — but thoroughly transformed — space. Two drug dealers and best friends find themselves trapped in a blizzard. Tempted by rare opportunities and tested by supernatural incidents, they find it necessary to quickly discover what it means to be real men.

What up, Holmes?

Katie Holmes on Guillermo Del Toro's latest horror film, 'Don't Be Afraid of the Dark' What she learned the moment she became a mother

Joey Potter has grown up. The 31-year-old woman who became famous for that character on "Dawson's Creek" so many years ago, is now poised and unflappable as she sits in New York's Waldorf Astoria, sweetly answering questions about her latest film, "Don't Be Afraid of the Dark."

Produced by the auteur of gore, Guillermo Del Toro, "Dark" centers around a young girl named Sally (Bailee Madison) who joins her father (Guy Pearce) and his new girlfriend (Holmes) to live at an old restored mansion, which, Sally learns, harbors some creepy ancient creatures who are dying for some company.

"They're like cockroaches but worse because they're slimy, so it's like half-maggot, half cockroach," Holmes says of the predatory homunculi.

Where the actress, who has been married to fellow actor Tom Cruise for five years this November, is heavy on charm — she even thanked us for coming out in the rain to support the film — she's light on candor. Holmes is one to, as we say in the business, "stick to the script."

"It was a real thrill to work with Guillermo," she says when asked how doing this movie compared with the horror movies she did earlier in her career. "I loved the characters and the family dynamics that really bring the audience in. Then, all of a sudden something scary happens and you realize you're on this thrill ride."

But how about those films like "I Know What You Did Last Summer"? She continues:

"I started my career with 'The Ice Storm' — that was a character-driven slice-of-life drama and horror. I feel fortunate. I've worked with a lot of really good actors and filmmakers, so it was nice to have that opportunity again in this picture."

Quoted

"What I love about this character that I got to play – I love that moment when she's hurt and she has to rise and save Sally because it's an emotion that I didn't understand until I became a mother myself, which is that you have a strength that is unlike anything you ever thought of before, let alone ever experienced. It's very real and it's very primal. It happens the moment that baby is born – you are a different person."

— Katie Holmes on the sacrifices of motherhood

3 Ways to not land the job

It'll take more than spell-checking your résumé and giving a nice firm handshake Tony Lee, publisher of CareerCast.com, on the biggest red flags for recruiters

Even if you know you're perfect for the job, you need to play the professional interview game.

1. Being too casual

Sometimes, being your lovable, charming self isn't the best approach. "One of the biggest problems is people think of themselves as being pretty smart, so they think they can wing it — they'll impress companies and interviewers and recruiters just by being themselves," says Lee. "But you really need to be ready to show why you're the best candidate and are ready for the job. Make sure you're not too casual in your approach."

2. Submitting a general application

Even if the positions you're applying for are similar, take the time to personalize each cover letter and résumé — it'll make you stand out from the majority of applicants who don't. "One of the biggest complaints we hear from employers is that candidates aren't very savvy about applying for jobs," says Lee. "They fire off the same application for every job without tailoring it for that position, and without carefully looking for an opportunity that you'd be successful at."

3. Not explaining employment gaps

If you haven't been working, you're far from alone. But it's important to account for that time to prospective employers. "They're afraid that if you've been out of work for a couple years than you've fallen into bad habits. What you have to show is that you've been active," says Lee. "If you can show that in the last year you helped manage three events at your children's schools that helped raise over $20,000, it shows that you've been active."

Do some cleaning up on Google

You can clean up your Facebook profile, but if your Google search results aren't flattering, that's a little more difficult to work around. One easy diversion that Lee suggests is to invite employers to visit your polished LinkedIn or Google+ profile so they don't have to search.

On the slightly more sneaky side, if "Anthony Lee" turned up questionable search results, he suggests applying as the still correct and honest "Tony Lee."

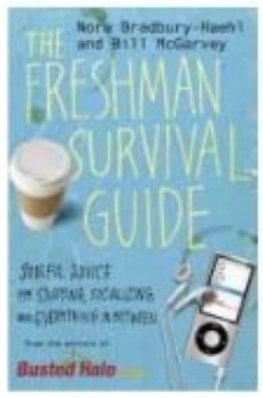
What the textbooks won't teach you



'The Freshman Survival Guide' on grades, roommates and God What all new students will need to know

For their book "The Freshman Survival Guide," authors Nora Bradbury-Haehl and Bill McGarvey of BustedHalo.com interviewed professors, administrators, campus ministers and students alike in order to give incoming freshmen a primer on practicalities they'll need to know their first year of college — and also to help them tackle the bigger questions. We went to McGarvey with some questions of our own.

What's the biggest mistake freshmen make when they start college?
They assume that everybody is going to be trustworthy, and a few weeks or months into the semester, you might realize that person you befriended can be not really worthy of your trust. You spend 18 years getting to this point and you have friendships and networks with people that know you and who you are: Don't just chuck them out the window because you're in college and everything is exciting and new.

Why did you choose to include matters of faith in your book? A lot of college guidebooks don't.
That's kind of the reason why. There's a lot of books out there about getting into school and making yourself a success in college, but there was nothing in there that dealt with the whole student. These books almost seem to assume that these students were a collection of brain cells and hormones. College kids are less religious but they're definitely getting more spiritual.

What should every freshman know upon starting college?
You're spending good money to get an education and there are enormous resources at your fingertips. You're gonna run into challenges, but there are places to turn and people that are there to help you.

Online

Expand on the book's web component.

I came from a web background and I wanted to make sure that our book reflected the way younger college students read and interact with the media now. Throughout the book there are chapters where you can go online and get special information or contribute, but there's also this thing called the Interactive RA [where] resident assistants from around the country volunteer to take questions.

Horoscope

♎ Libra Sept. 23-Oct. 23. Don't be surprised if it seems like everybody's attention is focused on you. Because of the genuine concern you show for them, people can't help being drawn to you.

♏ Scorpio Oct. 24-Nov. 22. What makes you such a standout among your peers is your philosophical outlook, which helps you to not only acquire knowledge but also to easily disseminate it as needed.

♐ Sagittarius Nov. 23-Dec. 21. Even some of your opponents will be in awe of the way you handle challenging developments that suddenly arise. While others are scurrying for cover, you'll be settling things.

♑ Capricorn Dec. 22-Jan. 19. Although you tend to handle things single-handedly, you might establish a temporary partnership for mutual reasons. Once your purposes are accomplished, you'll go your own way.

♒ Aquarius Jan. 20-Feb. 19. There won't be anything selfish about your current outlook. In fact, your primary concern will be that others fare as well as you. You'll even offer whatever help you can.

♈ Aries March 21-April 19. Getting off to a good start early in the week will help make the work you need to accomplish much easier to finish within the next few days. You'll be ahead of schedule.

♉ Taurus April 20-May 20. Someone who can make your heart beat faster might display much more than a platonic interest in you. It'll be up to you to let him or her know it is welcomed.

♊ Gemini May 21-June 20. Because you've been extra nice to a number of pals lately, they might want to do something special for you, each in his or her own way.

♋ Cancer June 21-July 22. It's quite possible that even those friends who are closest to you aren't aware of your wants and desires. Thus, you can't expect any help from them unless you verbalize your desires.

♌ Leo July 23-Aug. 22. Some of your greatest benefits this week are likely to come from people you don't even know. They won't be purposely doing things on your behalf; it'll just turn out that way.

2011 U.S. OPEN — FLUSHING MEADOWS

Nadal set to defend

- Spanish star is feeling less pressure after claiming elusive final major
- Djokovic ripe for upset off injury
- Plus how he enjoys time off in NYC

Rafael Nadal

GETTY IMAGES

Defending U.S. Open champion and current No. 2-seeded player Rafael Nadal is feeling the heat to take first in this year's Open — just not as intensely as he was at this time last year.

"The pressure is always there," he told the crowd at Bar Basque last week, where he was on hand to promote Bacardi's Champions Drink Responsibly campaign. "Last year was more pressure for me than this year, because last year I felt I had a real chance of winning. Last year I felt ready to win."

"The pressure is always there. ... Last year I felt ready to win."
RAFAEL NADAL, DEFENDING U.S. OPEN CHAMPION

With his win one year ago, the "King of Clay" became the seventh player in history achieve a Grand Slam, and the youngest player in the open era to do so. This year, he'll take on current No. 1 seed Novak Djokovic in an effort to defend his title, and he won't let a recent mishap at a Japanese restaurant (Nadal burned two fingers touching a hot plate) — or foot injuries that have threatened to curb his career — get in the way.

"With the injury of my left foot, for moments it was tough — we didn't know if I would have the chance to be playing," Nadal said.

And while in town for the Open, Nadal plans to take advantage of all that the city has to offer.

"I have been here in the past, before I came for the U.S. Open, with my family. I know the city very well. When I have the chance I love to walk around, have dinner in good places from here. Probably later I'm gonna go to the theater to watch a musical. I think today [it's] 'Mamma Mia.'"

MEREDITH ENGEL
meredith.engel@metro.us

Djokovic has own concerns

TENNIS. While Rafael Nadal deals with his food-related injury, Novak Djokovic is dealing with his own problems.

Djokovic pulled out of last week's tournament in Montreal — in the middle of his semifinal match — with a pulled muscle in his arm.

Djokovic will play in Queens, but one player we know is fully healthy is five-time champ Roger Federer.

TAKE A SHOT ON THESE TOP FLIERS

Fantasy sports

ADAM LEVITAN
ALEVITAN@METRO.US

It's the 12th round and you're on your 11th beer. After hemming and hawing for 30 seconds, you just throw out a name you know: Brett Favre! Ugh.

The final few picks of your draft must not be throwaways. We need to build depth and take shots on players that have high ceilings. Here are the best fliers with average draft positions of 110 or higher:

Sir Lance

Drew Brees begged for the Saints to retain Lance Moore in free agency and they did just that. Now that Reggie Bush is gone, there are more slot targets for Moore, and he's reportedly having the best training camp of any New Orleans receiver.

Law firm issues

Third-round rookie RB Stevan Ridley has been the star of the preseason so far, going over 100 total yards in two straight games. BenJarvus Green-Ellis is far from an elite talent, so Ridley could very well get his shot as soon as this season. And if the "Law Firm" were to get injured, Ridley would have big upside as the clear goal-line back.

Cook on site

The only reason Jared Cook still has an ADP of 158.9 is because no one knows who he is. After the public gets a look at his freakish talent that will definitely change. Cook is a good bet to lead the Titans in receptions this year and seize top-10 tight end value by the end of the season.

GETTY IMAGES

▶ Lance Moore's arrow is pointing way up on the heels of a big training camp and Reggie Bush's departure.

7.0

Catches per touchdown for Kenny Britt during his first two seasons. Now that Matt Hasselbeck is in town, he's a threat for 12-plus TDs. Well worth the risks.

Losers: NFL training camp stock watch

The stock of these three players is falling as we approach the heart of fantasy drafting season:

1 Peyton Manning, QB, IND — Manning is in real danger of missing Week 1 due to his neck injury. He is also 35 and his No. 1 receiver has lost a step. Look elsewhere.

2 Daniel Thomas, RB, MIA — Reggie Bush has been installed as the starter and the Dolphins are even kicking the tires on a washed up Larry Johnson. That's because Thomas has not impressed in camp.

3 Roy Williams, WR, CHI — Williams showed up to camp out of shape, dropping passes and failing to get open. In other words, Mike Martz can't save him.
